Don't forget the oyster-supper at the Court House this evening.

The Virginia Annual Conference of United Brethren in Christ, Bishop Grossbrunner, presiding, will meet in Winchester, on Wednesday, Feb. 20th.

REVEREND.—Grandstaff, late Sheriff &c. vs. Ridgely, Hampton & Co. From circuit court of Shenandoah county, was reversed by the court of appeals. Judge Staples delivered the opinion of the court.

FOR RENT.—A brick dwelling and store room in the most business part of the town of Woodstock. For further information, apply to Editor of the Herald.

The right thing in the right place is without doubt Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup, the best remedy for babies while teething. Price, only 25 cents a bottle.

We are sorry to learn that a number of our citizens have lost their pork by the warm and sultry weather during the hog-killing season. —Win News.

POSTPONED.—The communication of "A Woman" in reply to Hezekiah Jenkins is necessarily omitted, this week.

We are glad to hear it. Our druggist informs us that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup sells better than any other medicine, and always gives satisfaction.

ARRESTED.—A. W. K. Aarhisen, who it will be remembered gave a musical concert in this place, was arrested at Staunton on the charge of stealing musical instruments from Silas Ward, of Harrisburg, Pa. and was taken to that State, for trial.

It is customary for young ladies when about returning home to send a dispatch saying "I will be on the mail train with my husband" just to see how ma will take it. One of our Woodstock girls tried the experiment, but ma didn't go into ecstasies over the bride.

OYSTER SUPPER.—There will be held this (Wednesday) evening in the Court House a festival and oyster-supper for the benefit of the Library of the Y. M. C. A. The public are cordially invited to attend and be served with a good plate of splendid oysters, either stewed, fried, or raw for twenty-five cents and a saucer of ice-cream for ten cents.

NOSE OF OUR FIGHT.—Our brothers of the Woodstock Herald and New Market Valley have a squabble over some last turkey, and a cold duck. We would be a big guess if we called that any of our fight; so if the turkeys have graybill (s) and the duck is perfumed with ambrosia (ia), we will just let their fowls gobble and quack. We have plenty of good living down our way. —Rock Register.

WHIPPED.—Heavy gallery, colored, was very suddenly brought to grief on last Tuesday night, whilst engaged in a little foraging expedition. Loaded with coal, Henry was returning to his domicile, when he was overtaken by the enemy, Officer Evans, and carried before Justice Kreus, who ordered ten lashes, with instructions to return at the expiration of ten days and receive the same number. —Win News.

TO HOUSEKEEPERS.—Those in want of Queensware have now the opportunity of buying single articles at wholesale prices. H. Logan & Co., have received a large assortment of Queensware, in original packages, which will be sold as low as wholesale merchants have been selling. In quality and in price he is prepared to give entire satisfaction. He invites examination, especially of his Stone China ware.

Snow.—On last Wednesday night and Thursday we had a severe snow storm. It commenced snowing about 10 o'clock Wednesday and continued about 24 hours. It drifted to such an extent that it was impossible to ascertain the average depth, but it was generally supposed to be about 13 or 14 inches. It is the deepest snow we have had for some years.

THE GROUND HOG.—Last Saturday was ground hog, and according to the prognostications of his hogship, we are to have mild weather, for the balance of the winter. We are always disposed to believe in the sign when he predicts mild weather. Should he decide the other way, we would have no faith in such old time superstitions. This year he is a good prophet, but it would not be wise to entirely neglect your wood piles.

SLEIGHTING.—The deep snow has afforded a fine opportunity to all parties who are fond of sleigh riding. Our young people seem to enjoy the sport. But like all other sports it is sometimes attended with risks and dangers, as was the case last Saturday night, when a young man more accustomed to drawing molasses and measuring calico than driving horses, undertook to turn a corner and succeeded in throwing himself and a gentleman and lady into a snow bank. It was a heavy fall but none of the parties were injured.

(For the Shenandoah Herald.) Experience of a Married Man.

BY HEZEKIAH JENKINS.

The loss of Maria's flowers affected her very much. She moved about very quietly. Her countenance wore a calm, subdued expression, she seldom smiled, but she was still to me the same sweet Maria.

A few days ago, a stranger called. Maria's kind heart always induces her to extend a cordial welcome to strangers. This gentleman represented himself as the agent of a very valuable apparatus, recently invented and known as "Bull's Telephone."

He had a very smooth tongue and was a fine talker. In his most insinuating manner he explained to Maria how she could sit at home and talk to her mother, living an hundred miles away; and by using a very cheap instrument, she could converse with all her neighbors without going to see them, and besides, he said it was so convenient to housekeepers because they could ascertain who has sour milk to give away or butter to lend without sending all over town. His rates were so reasonable that Maria had a half dozen telephones put up at once and she amused herself for a half-day talking to her friends.

When I came home Maria looked so pleasant that I thought some dealer in flowers had been there. She gave me one of her old time sweet smiles and again I recognized the bright sparkling eyes that first made me love Maria.

I was hardly seated before I heard a confused noise, as if a dozen people were speaking at once. I looked up, when Maria remarked:

"Hubby, that is the Reading Club. They meet to-night at Mrs. Thompson's. Won't it be so pleasant? We can sit here and listen to them as they read from some standard author, for I am sure the young ladies select only the best books for their reading club. Now be still and we will enjoy it as much as if we were in the room with them."

We were both quiet and for a full hour that telephone was taxed to its utmost capacity. At first, we could only hear a confused noise and an occasional expression such as "O girls, do be quiet!" "Miss President!" "Lieutenant, you're too loud, somebody will hear you!" "Order, Order!" "Miss President, I move we have a party in honor of the departure of one of our members." The motion was fully discussed, a half dozen speaking at one time and finally it was shamed down to a Taffy Pulling. The next question was "What shall we wear?" All kinds of costumes from a parasol to a silk slipper were discussed until white aprons and black dresses were agreed upon. The comments upon the different articles of dress were quite original. A dispute about a fastinator was decided by giving it to a lady who could put on the most fascinating airs. The dress question being settled, the selection of beaux was next in order. The telephone had names so wonderfully mixed that we could scarcely assort them. They rolled in some-thing in this order: John Smith, Bender Ott, Luther Fravel, Walter Walker, Charley Bird, and six or seven others, but at last we heard a voice "Now you call out, and I will write." Bender Smith, Walter Newman, Charley Fravel, John Ott, put that Black John, David Miller, Luther Walker, Will Williams, Evans Caskey, and a number of others. Many remarks were indulged in at the expense of these gentlemen. The features of some were too prominent, some were too slow, some were too precise and some were rejected entirely and their names omitted. It was now discovered that the beaux would not "go round" when it was proposed to invite three widowers, but the proposition did not meet with favor. It was moved that each lady invite a gentleman but an objection was made and as there were not beaux enough, it was determined that the ladies should go by themselves and all the gentlemen should be invited to the house where the taffy was to be pulled.

I remarked to Maria "Now, I suppose, they will read" but all I heard was, "Miss President, I move we adjourn," and after a little laughing and a great deal of talking there was quiet. Maria was very much disappointed, but I really enjoyed the evening. There were so many witty expressions, and besides I learned more of human nature in that one hour than I ever did before. I proposed to Maria to put up a few more telephones, for I really enjoyed the conversations of the Reading Club.

There was quiet for a moment when I was startled by a squeaky voice exclaiming "A pretty time to be coming home." I looked around to see who was talking, but Maria said that it was only Mrs. Jones, who lived three squares away talking to her husband.

"Yes," she continued, "here I have been ever since dark by my lone self with the children, and you down street playing dominoes or loafing in the stores. Did I ever think it would come to this? I may work my finger nails off and you loafing about the stores. 'Attending to business' you say I don't believe a word of it. Day-time is the proper time for business and I know that I could in five minutes attend to all the business that you attend to after finding a whole year, and besides I don't know whether you are at the stores or not, a man that is out every night certainly must go to places that his wife does not know. No, Mr. Jones, I can not, and I will not stand it, you've got to help to take care of these children. They are as much your children as they are mine, and if you don't attend to them I won't. And besides Mr. Gorkeson was in here to-day and told me a whole lot of things about men in this place, and if it had not been for respect for my feelings, I believe he would have told me some thing about you. We have had enough of it I am not going to sit here every night by myself and you come stumbling in at 11 o'clock with a whole bundle of excuses. I am almost broken hearted, yes indeed I am," and the sobs and cries came tumbling through that blamed apparatus so rapidly that I became quite nervous.

"says I am good natured and that they can't see how I bear up so cheerfully. Who is everybody? you ask, why you must think I am telling you a lie, oh me! did I ever think my own husband would make me out a liar, 'you didn't say so,' well you might as well, for you pretended not to believe what I was saying, and besides, if you had a quarrelsome wife like some women that I know you might have some excuse for not being at home. But here I am patiently bearing everything and when I happen to make a good natured remark about you coming home soon you say you 'never could stand quarreling.' I want you to understand that I never quarrel and especially with one whom I vowed to love, honor, and obey, no sir, I am not quarreling, and if you insinuate such a thing you are no better than a vagabond that would let his wife and children starve while he is loafing about the street. You say, I am excited, it is not so, I never was more calm in my life. I am not one of those excitable women that let every thing bother them, and besides if I cannot have a few words of pleasant conversation, without you getting mad and making me out a liar, or say that I am quarreling, or excited, I am going right straight to my room and will not say another word until you get in a better humor."

And then we heard a door slam that made me and Maria both jump.

Maria looked up sweetly and said "Hubby, I am glad you don't stay out at night."

The boy stood on the cold, bleak street, whence all but him had fled, A few cold stars in his eyes were, And with a wild cry he said:

"Run Doctor Run! only one woman on the street!" And the way this venerable old M. D. skinned through the streets of Edinburgh would have shamed the young men of a modern ball club. But we must confess that the whole affair is rather mysterious to us. The Turco-Russian bath is a new thing, but to see an M. D. of seventy years constant practice, balancing on a foot-bridge, like a young gymnast, and then taking an early morning plunge in the cool, very cool waters of Sion Creek, is a revolution in modern medical science. He didn't even shock off his clothes but went in under the "whole hog or none." And then the foot race through the streets for home with his frozen clothing clanging at every wild jump like a suit of ancient armor. The advance guard consisted of one small boy, who has not yet collected his five cent nickel.

COURT DAY.—Next Monday will be county court day. As a business day people generally regard February court as poor, but for several years if we can judge by our own experience, it has been the best business court day of the year. We hope that we will not be disappointed this year, for we know we have many subscribers on our list who have been intending to pay us for a long time, but have forgotten it or for some other reason have neglected it. Don't hesitate because your subscription has been long standing, for the reporting of these fellows that we have not seen for these many years rejoices the heart of the Editor more than the calls of ninety and nine prompt paying subscribers. We believe in the remuneration of silver, but you need not hesitate on that account, for we receive subscriptions, in gold, silver, greenbacks, apples, vinegar, wood, butter, beef, cider, brooms, &c. &c. If you have none of these, call to see us and tell us how well you like the paper. It encourages us. If you don't endorse all the sentiments expressed in the paper, you have the opportunity of looking on both sides of questions. Editors sometimes make mistakes, but they never acknowledge them, they leave that to the other fellow to do. But whether you have money or not, call to see us. We will be glad to see you. We have just printed a full supply of blank receipts that are waiting to be filled up, and have furnished our sanctum with six new chairs and a rocking chair. There is room for all, and we will make you as comfortable as we can.

STRASBURG, VA. Feby. 4, 1878.
Mr. E. W. Mott, met with an accident last Saturday evening whilst sleighing with a couple of young ladies. If all reports be true Mr. M. was about to make the turn on long alley to go up North Back Street and turned too short when to the sleigh upon and left the two ladies and Mr. M. laying in the snow. The horse ran some 50 or 60 yards before he could be caught. Mr. M. sprained one of his fingers and had a piece cut out of the palm of his right hand. Mr. M. is improving as fast as could be expected.

DISTURBANCE OF RELIGIOUS WORSHIP.—Complaint has been made on several occasions that religious meetings have been disturbed by some parties in this place. Should the offence be repeated, the law will certainly be enforced. We publish, for the benefit of parties interested, the law upon the subject.

"If a person wilfully interrupt or disturb any assembly met for the worship of God, or shall, being intoxicated, disturb the same, whether wilfully or not, he shall be confined in jail not more than six months and fined not exceeding one hundred dollars; and a justice may put him under restraint during religious worship and bind him, for not more than one year to be of good behavior."

PERSONAL.—Our office was illuminated last week by the smiling countenance of the new Editor of the Rocking-ham Register. He is always a welcome guest. We are glad to learn that the Register will soon appear with a new dress. The Register under the management of Devier & Dechert, will, we have no doubt, take a stand among the first papers of the State. When Col. D. makes an effort to enlarge the subscription list, it will certainly "go a flying," for it is just as natural for him to pick up subscribers as for a duck to pick up fresh seeds.

FRESH SEEDS.—From the reliable house of L. Landreth & Sons just received, 5 ten cent papers for 25 cts.

TOWN LOTS FOR SALE.—I have 29 acres of land within the corporation of Woodstock, which will be sold at reasonable rates. I will be in Woodstock for several weeks and will take pleasure in showing the land. If not sold by the 15th of February, I will offer it at public sale.

J. B. HENSTREET.

The Israelites of Harrisonburg have become offended at the Register, because a local appeared in that paper headed "Taking the starch out of a Jew." The use of the term "Jew" proved offensive and the Hebrews in retaliation held a meeting and passed a number of resolutions, one of which is that they will not entertain any further commercial relations with the above mentioned Rockingham Register.

We regret to see any such action as it has a tendency to create and foment a bitter feeling between the Americans and Hebrews as classes of society. If the object of the Hebrews is to confine their commercial relations to their own people exclusively, we can readily understand their object; but if they expect to crush a newspaper and at the same time to secure the patronage of the people of Rockingham, they are certainly injuring themselves instead of the paper. Such efforts to produce public prejudice may succeed in some sections, but in this Valley, it will certainly react upon the parties themselves.

To HORSEMEN.—Dr. Cushman, the eminent veterinary Surgeon and Physician will give a free exhibition on a horse, and a free lecture on horse-shoeing; also a general treatise on the diseases of the horse.

He will exhibit in front of the Post Office, in Woodstock, Va. at one P. M. (sharp) on Saturday, Feb. 9th, 1878. Remember this is not horse taming; and we make up no schools or classes. Horse owners, don't fail to see his Boss Bridle bits. They are something entirely new. Farmers, don't fail to see and hear us. Will also be at Mr. Jackson Feb. 12th, at one P. M.; New Market Feb. 13th, at one P. M.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.—The numbers of The Living Age for the weeks ending January 16th and February 23rd have the following noteworthy contents: France as a Military Power in 1877 and 1878, by Sir Garnet Wolseley, Nineteenth Century; The Little Health of Ladies, by Frances Power Cobbe, Contemporary Review; The Chair's Clemency, a Polish Priest's Story, Cornhill; The Decay of the Monarchical Principle, Spectator; The Greek Mind in Presence of Death, interpreted from Reliefs and Inscriptions on Athenian Tombs, Contemporary Review; Cliffs, the Apostle of the Geths, Edinburgh Review; Within the Precincts, by Mrs. Oliphant, from advance sheets; Hydrophobia and Rabies, Nineteenth Century; Erica, translated for The Living Age from the German of Frau von Ingelsleben; Charles Dickens's Verse, Spectator; Charles Dickens's Manuscripts, Chambers' Journal; French Dinners, Saturday Review; Feuchstein in Animals, Nature; Short-sight, Spectator; Rumboldt's Nature, with the usual choice poetry, &c. The back numbers containing the first instalments of "Erica," and a story by Miss Thackeray, are still sent gratis to new subscribers for 1878.

For fifty-two numbers, of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3000 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low; or for $10.50 any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies is sent with The Living Age for a year, both postpaid. Littell & Gay, Boston, are the publishers.
